

Quality counts

Shaping the design of new buildings and spaces – a political issue

The state of our local neighbourhoods is a serious political issue. In the coming years, we will be judged on the quality of the next generation of schools and hospitals as well as the state of our streets and public spaces. This leaflet sets out what you, as an MP, can do to make sure that the new buildings and the public realm in your constituency are of the highest possible standard.

Left to right

Juniper House, King's Lynn,
Jeremy Stacey Architects

Davygate Retail Scheme, York,
Panter Hudspith

Iroko Housing Co-op, London,
Howarth Tompkins Architects

Brindley Place, Birmingham,
Argent/Birmingham City Council